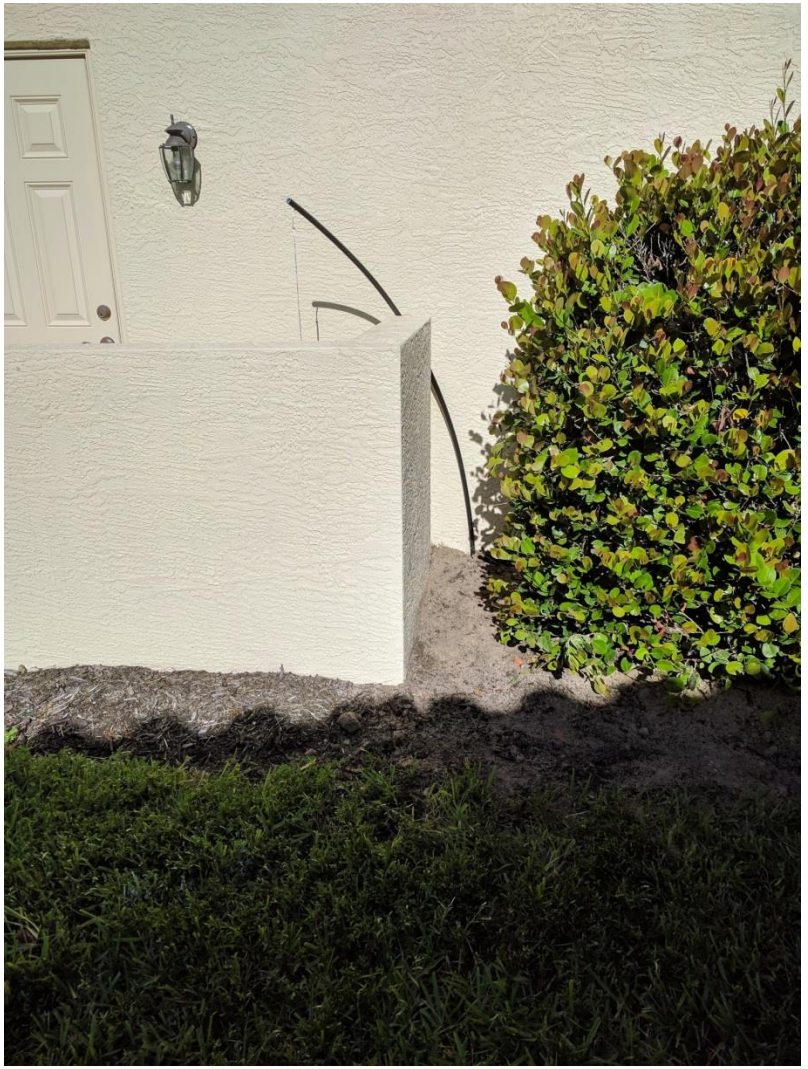
The conduit spool has bull tape inside to pull the fiber through later. The ATV and spool is moved after each trench is completed.



The end of the buried conduit against the house where it will be terminated later into a box that will be attached to the exterior of the home.

The hand trench with the conduit at the bottom

The same area after they closed the trench, if you look closely toward the water in-between two trees, you'll see the end of the conduit pointed up for later attachment to the trenched fiber line running across the back of the properties
